How to access invoices from Unite

How to manually access an invoice

Unite uses an automated invoice system and, depending on your system, you'll either receive it in your inbox or through your own ERP system if you're using the PunchOut setup. Get all the information you need to integrate Unite with your system \(PunchOut\).

To manually access your invoice, sign in to your account and click on the 'Order archive' tab. Click on the relevant order, where you'll find the invoice attached as a PDF document in the column 'Documents'.

Electronic invoicing (e-invoice)

An e-invoice is an electronic document that has the same content and legal implications as a paper invoice or a PDF attachment in an email.

Requirements for receiving e-invoices

To receive e-invoices, you should meet one of the following criteria:

- Your system can receive emails with XML attachments or
- Your company is registered in the PEPPOL network.

E-invoices for public sector organisations

Since November 2020, e-invoicing has been mandatory for public sector organisations. Unite complies with this requirement by providing XRechnung.

If you're a public sector organisation and haven't yet received e-invoices from Unite, you can adjust the necessary settings in your account. Go to 'Account' and then 'Settings'. Select the 'Public sector organisation' option. Please also update the new mandatory field 'Leitweg-ID' in your billing addresses. Your invoices will then be digitally transmitted via the PEPPOL network in accordance with national and regional requirements.

Self-billing procedure

Unite will not issue any invoices to the customer and the customer is responsible for the invoicing procedure as set out in this section.

- Delivery of items: The supplier sends items to the customer and Unite transmits an e-dispatch notification to the customer without generating an invoice.
- Credit advice: Following transmission of the e-dispatch notification the customer must invoice the order by means of a credit advice issued by the customer in accordance with the applicable tax laws containing the mandatory details, the order number used by the customer, and any account assignments.
- No collective credit advice: One credit advice must be issued for each order. Collective (more than one) credit advice for multiple orders isn't permitted.
- Invoice correction: Unite reviews the credit advice for accuracy. If discrepancies arise, Unite can dispute it, and the customer adjusts accordingly. Only debit notes which are sent using the same communication protocol as the credit advice can be accepted for the revision of the credit advice issued by the customer.
- Payment: The customer pays Unite based on the credit advice and the agreed payment terms.
- Record keeping: Both parties retain records for auditing and tax compliance, ensuring proper documentation storage as per regulations.

Please get in touch with your dedicated Unite contact if you're interested in the self-billing procedure.
